Research Projects

DOISAC: Project name stands for “Detecting Orchestrated Information and Synthetic Account Campaigns”. This project founded by the Office of Naval Research aims at detecting orchestrated information and synthetic activity campaigns on social media using machine learning and computational tools. In this project, I studied individual and group activities of terrorist recruiters. We build predictive models to identify accounts with malicious intentions and activities.

PIs: Emilio Ferrara, Alessandro Flammini,

DESPIC: Project name stands for “Detecting Early Signature of Persuasion in Information Cascades” and aims to design a system detect persuasion campaigns at their early stage of inception, in the context of online social media. Our team built a system that analyzes social media data and extracts network, temporal, content, and user-based features to detect online campaigns. I worked on several modules of this framework: (i) a clustering procedure that uses metadata to compute similarity between memes; (ii) a classification system that determines whether a meme is potentially an orchestrated campaign or a genuine, grassroots conversation; (iii) a social bot detection framework called BotOrNot. This project founded by DARPA SMISC program.

PIs: Alessandro Flammini, Filippo Menczer

Truthy: This project aims to understand how information propagates through complex socio-technical information networks. In this project, I analyzed and studied roles of individuals during social upheavals, diffusion of trending topics in spatio-temporal space, and characterization of social media censorship and its effect on user behavior.
